IN MEMORIAM

a public acknowledgement . . . .

. . . . to our typesetter, printer and staff

THE CALIFORNIA REGISTER has had over 200,000 text changes since its last issue. This is possibly the most complicated typesetting job besetting any publisher in the United States.

This 1962 issue contains approximately 20,000 registrations. Hardly a listing has not had a telephone change, address correction, change in marital status, additional listing of children, deletion or addition of affiliations.

Mr. Stuart W. Stone, Mr. Donald E. Finlayson and Mr. Ted Fell and their craftsmen assistants of Glen Ellyn Press in Glen Ellyn, Illinois, are to be credited for handling this gigantic typesetting task.

To assure this edition's arrival to Registrants on schedule and performing the press work of this 1078 page book on deluxe bible paper and preparing the luxury binding of our beautiful volume, Mr. Alfred G. Muellerleile and Mr. Richard Muellerleile of The North Central Publishing Company, St. Paul, Minnesota, receive our gratitude.

And, from the Publisher, a public thank you to our four members of the clerical staff who have worked evenings and weekends as well as all through the year transferring the changes from Verification Cards to printers' galleys, over and over again—assuring our subscribers that they are receiving the most accurate reference volume.

Our gratitude is particularly extended to you, our Registrants, who have faithfully returned your Verification Cards as well as supported us with your subscriptions.

Thanks to all above, the decade old California Register is at last a more routine work. After ten years of extensive compilation effort The Social Blue Book of California now enjoys the prestige of being the most complete social reference encyclopedia published for any state in the Union.

FOREWORD

The Editorial Board of the California Register, Social Blue Book of California, dedicate this volume to the men and women of California who have distinguished themselves as leaders in their respective communities, as well as in their state.

The Editors have endeavored to select those whose social heritage; philanthropic efforts; professional, commercial, and political achievements are indicative of a personal and social integrity worthy of the respect of their community.

Through the efforts and standards of these individuals, California holds a dominant position among the fifty states.

questions to ask in choosing a camp

How do we go about choosing the right camp for our child? This is the question which every parent faces when there is the desire to enter a young person in a fine private camp. The following questions are offered as a guide to parents in choosing a private summer camp.

1. What are my child's special interests? There are ranch camps for the riding enthusiast; farm camps for the nature lover; beach camps which the child from inland areas might particularly enjoy; remote mountain camps to thrill the child from the city. Choose a camp that can offer your child the very most of what he especially enjoys.

2. Where would I like the camp to be located? Some camps are urban, some county, some remote. For the very young child the parent may not want the child in too primitive an area; for the older child the remote and primitive area might be the best.

3. How much will our budget allow for the expense of a private camp? Prices vary a great deal and there is a good camp to meet almost any need. Be careful to observe whether prices quoted are all-inclusive or whether there are many extra charges. Transportation will add a great deal more for some camps than for others.

4. Who operates the camp? Parents should have complete confidence in the individual who owns or operates the camp. The camp should offer a picture of permanence and stability. Do not hesitate to inquire as to how counselors are selected and in what age bracket they will be.

5. What is the philosophy of the camp towards child participation? Some camps have a very regimented program with required participation in all activities. Some will go to the opposite extreme and permit great freedom of choice. What nature of camp philosophy will be best for your child?

THE PRIVATE CAMPS which are included in this section hold membership in the American Camping Association and conform to the standards of the national organization. It must be understood that the camps in this section are representative only and do not include all of the approved camps of the American Camping Association. Camps outside the American Camping Association will be considered by the Education Board — Committee on Private Camps for future issues of The California Register.

The California Register and The California Register Education Board do not accept responsibility on the final choice of a parent, for it is felt a parent, prior to the selection of any camp, should always request of the camp literature, make investigation of the Association to which the camp belongs, of the community of the camp through the Chamber of Commerce, and any other research which he would feel could give the parent confidence. It is felt by the Committee and The California Register that the camps included herein are, in general, worthy of recognition and further investigation.
